

Donald Trump Rockets Into Nashville for NFRA Conference

1888 Press Release - Republican Presidential candidate, Donald Trump, will join the National Federation of Republican Assemblies in Nashville, Tennessee on the 29th of August. The event, to be held at Rocketown in downtown Nashville, will see Donald Trump, Rick Santorum and other candidates share their vision for America. Subsequently, the NFRA will hold its nominating convention to select a primary candidate.

The Tennessee Republican Assembly - TRA (www.tnra.org) organization announced today that Republican presidential candidate, Donald Trump, will be speaking at the National Federation of Republican Assemblies conference in Nashville, Tennessee. The conference will be held at the Rocketown Conference Center in downtown Nashville from August 28 to August 30, 2015.

President of the TRA and conference organizer, Sharon Ford, stated, "The NFRA seeks to bring the Republican Party back to its core values through grass roots activism. Our national conference allows people from across the country to meet, share views and listen to a great group of speakers about issues important to them. We are so glad to have Donald Trump confirm his attendance and expect that he will electrify the crowd with his plain speaking style and vision to make America great again!"

The National Federation of Republican Assemblies is a grassroots movement of Republicans that seeks to restore the conservative principles of the Goldwater/Reagan Republicans back to smaller government, lower taxation, a strong defense, free market capitalism and a reverence for that most fundamental of all "unalienable" rights, Life; all life.

NFRA does what few other Republican organizations ever do, that is we endorse candidates in contested primaries. Each election year our state chapters convene in highly competitive grassroots endorsing conventions. Candidates must secure two-thirds of the members support to win. In presidential election cycles the NFRA holds a Presidential Preference Endorsing Convention in order for our chosen state delegates to determine the Presidential candidate the NFRA will endorse.

Ford commented, "Our national convention is being held to establish and endorse the candidate that the NFRA seeks to support during this primary cycle. We understand that it is early in the process and that we are a long way off to the general election, however, this conference is the first of its kind to actually endorse during a primary. With Donald Trump's participation, we know that he understands the grass roots movement. We are honored that he has confirmed his attendance."

NFRA delegates from 20+ states will be in Nashville for this Convention and will be voting on the candidate they believe will best represent the NFRA Guiding Principles. After the Endorsing Convention in Nashville a press statement will be released with the NFRA endorsement of the Reagan Conservative Republican Presidential Candidate for 2016.

In addition to Donald Trump, Presidential Candidate Rick Santorum has also confirmed to speak. Other conference speakers include Congressman Louie Gohmert, Lt. Col. Allen West, Pastor Rafael Cruz and Dr. Ming Wang.

About the NFRA

The National Federation of Republican Assemblies is a grassroots movement to take back the Republican Party for the vast and disenfranchised majority of its members: Reagan conservatives, who believe in small government, lower taxes, free market capitalism, a strong defense, the right to life, and a decent America. In short, we are the Republican Wing of the Republican Party.
